About me

My name is Federica, I live in Italy, in Le Marche region and I have taught the Italian language for over 15 years.

I started in the traditional way, in Bologna, in a classroom with my students. I have worked in many language schools, collaborated with the University of Bologna and run courses at the John Hopkins University in Bologna.

I then decided to change my life and go back to my native region, Le Marche. Now I live here with my family and from my own home I connect every day with my students who live all around the world. So we have our Italian lessons, as if we were in the same room.
